

Roberto Penagini

roberto.penagini@unimi.it

Currently collaborates with the Gastroenterology and Endoscopy Unit, Fondazione IRCCS Ca'Granda Ospedale Maggiore Policlinico, Milan, Italy where he has been Head of the Endoscopy Unit until 2022. His main activities include clinical gastroenterology, diagnostic and therapeutic endoscopy, motility and reflux testing and gastroenterology teaching at Università degli Studi of Milan.

He has worked in the Department of Gastroenterology, Central Middlesex Hospital, London, UK (1985-1987) and in the Gastroenterology Unit, Royal Adelaide Hospital, Adelaide, South Australia (1993).

He has been delegate of the Italian Society of Gastroenterology and Endoscopy (SIGE) at the National Societies Committee and Public Affairs Committee of United European Gastroenterology (UEG) (2011-2015)

Main educational and research interests

Training in gastrointestinal endoscopy, oesophageal motility and reflux testing

Research in pathophysiology, diagnosis and treatment of oesophageal diseases

Research in endoscopic treatment of biliary complications after liver transplantation

He is currently Lead Director of the UEG Summer School of Gastroenterology.

He is author of 200 full scientific publications in peer review Journals, 5253 citations, H Index 34 (Scopus 21.08.2023)